From The Editor

Here we are in the first issue of the tenth year. It was April 1995 when I started this. So far I've only had one person ask about taking over editing and publishing this. I'm really hoping someone will speak up and take over in the next six months.

This issue is based on emails and letters I've received from three main individuals. The main article was inspired by Jack (G.G. Summitt) who is working on a database of those involved in the War between the States. I've combined his email with my notes for Chapter 8 from my book on James Lee Summitt I am working on and, to my knowledge, we have produced the most comprehensive listing of all Summitt(t)s involved in the conflict. In addition to Jack, I have to credit Glen Summitt (of Boston), Dan, John Allen, and Paul C. as well as others too numerous to mention.

The second contributor is Glen Summitt (of Tennessee) who sent some wonderful pictures and as well as listings of both the New St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery and the Eva Mill/ Bat Creek Cemetery. I would like to point out how interesting it is that the first listing in our Civil War article is John Oody and Glenn has recently spoken with some descendants of John Oody and Mary M. (Summitt)(Gunn) Oody.

I also recently found a letter from Marilyn Summitt that should have been published here a long,

A letter from Glen Summitt

Glen recently received the following information concerning Mary Summitt, James Lee's sister. A Rev. Lester Gunn provided this information to Glen. Mary Summitt married John Oody and they had a son Leroy Oody. Mary married an Andrew Gunn first and they had two sons, Jess and Daniel. John Oody was also the father of James A. Oody by a previous marriage. Liza Oody, daughter of Mary and John, married Jess Gunn. This was Jess' second marriage. He was first married to a Delah and they had one daughter named Carrie who married a McGill. Leroy Oody married Della Sherrils on June 28, 1908 and they had two was sent to Memphis after his capture and from there to points East. He was released at Point Lookout, Maryland in February 1864 upon taking the oath of allegiance to the United States and apparently joining the Union Army.

John W. Pardue, James Lee Summitt's brother-in-law, husband of Nancy Jane Summitt. Enlisted as a private in Company C. of the 37th regiment of the Tennessee Infantry, Confederate Army, in May 1863. The Prisoner of War list from the Office of the Provost Marshal General, Union Army of Ohio, Knoxville, Tennessee has him "arrested at Athens, in McMinn County October 26, 1864 - stealing. Died Military Hospital February 10, 1865 at Knoxville, Tennessee."

Charles Samet, served as a private with Company H of the 2nd Delaware Infantry Regiment, Union Army.

Godfrey Sammet, enlisted in Company H, 192nd Pennsylvania Infantry Regiment, Union Army, on March 2, 1865 as a 2nd Lieutenant. Mustered out on August 24, 1865.

Jacob B. Sammet, served as a private with Company A of the 172nd Pennsylvania Infantry Regiment, Union Army.

Jacob P. Sammet, enlisted in Company H, 192nd Pennsylvania Infantry Regiment, Union Army, on February 21, 1865 as a Corporal. Mustered out on August 24, 1865.

William Sammet, enlisted in Company D, 43rd Illinois Infantry Regiment, Union Army, on September 1, 1861 as a private. Claimed residence in Chicago, Illinois. Killed at Shiloh, Tennessee on April 6, 1862.

Eli Sumet, enlisted in Company E, North Carolina 58th Infantry, Confederate Army, on June 27, 1862 at Camp Martin, North Carolina as a private. Some background information on Company E: Captain Alfred T. Stewart's Company was organized on July 29, 1862 in Caldwell County, North Carolina. Stewart was promoted to Major and this opened the command of the company. Thomas J. Coffey was chosen for the vacancy. "In 1861 North Carolina called on her sons to defend what she perceived to be her inalienable rights--states rights. Leaving the Union was not an easy decision for Tar Heels, and the dye was not cast until Lincoln called for volunteers to suppress the rebellion in the deep South. Young mountain farm boys left the nest for the first time, left to put on a gray uniform. Many families supplied more than one son to a company or regiment, some families gave all their sons to the cause. The 58th North Carolina was no different, and soon became a family itself, bound together by a common heritage, experience, philosophy, and blood. Despite the commonalities, there were some significant differences in the recruitment region. Caldwell and McDowell counties, for example, were considered foothills, and not mountains, and were perhaps more cosmopolitan than their comrades across the Blue Ridge. The 58th North Carolina Infantry was recruited on the eastern rim of the Appalachian Mountains in early 1862. The area was largely in the Mississippi River drainage basin, and the men were more akin to their brethren in Tennessee and Kentucky than other Carolinians in the Piedmont or Coastal Plain. The geography of their mountains made small farms, of 200 acres, the norm rather than the exception. Small farmers had few if any slaves and little or no need for them. The mountaineers had little vested interest in the economic reasons for the War for Southern Independence. Most of the men who enlisted in the 58th North Carolina shared General Robert E. Lee's feelings that they did not want a civil war, but they also could not, in good faith, shed the blood of their fellow Tar Heels. Despite the litany of reasons these mountaineers had for remaining Unionist or neutral, they were not and in 1861 embraced secession. In 1861, the Southern Army was made up of volunteers, by men who wanted to be there. When the ordinance of secession passed in May 1861, there was a flood of volunteers from the Tar Heel State into the new Southern Armies. The prevailing mood at the time was that these volunteers would be enough to secure independence. The idea that one Southerner could whip three to ten Yankees was common in early 1861 as well. The fact that the war was not over in 90 days dispelled this myth, and other Southern boys knew what they had to do in the early 1862--join the Army! Many North Carolinians were so anxious they joined the Confederate Army before North Carolina seceded. This enthusiasm was even found in Appalachian Carolina! Another contingent of men who eventually made up the 58th North Carolina, were Union men and had no intention of ever joining a rebel army. In 1862 however, a draft law was passed and many felt it was inevitable that they would have to join, and did so voluntarily rather than stuck with the stigma conscripts would suffer. Some joined the 58th in hopes of getting close enough to Federal lines to desert and go north. The Confederate Congress also extended the terms of enlistment from 12 months to 3 years. It had also enacted the first draft in North America, and required all men aged 18 to 35 to register, and by default, almost all would be called. Many of these men did wait and were conscripted in 1863 and sent to join the 58th North Carolina. Many of these late joiners had served in local militia and had some, if limited and ineffectual military training, and could be sent to join the unit, without further instruction."

Daniel T. Summet, Company E, 59 Tennessee Mounted Infantry, Confederate Army. Daniel joined for the unit on February 12, 1862 at Madisonville, Tennessee (near Sweetwater) at the age of 18. He was in Cooke's Regiment, Eakins Battalion, Capt. John R. Stradley's Company. The 59th Tennessee eventually ended up at Vicksburg and surrendered July 4, 1863. Served in Vaughn's Brigade in East Tennessee and Western Virginia thereafter. (Source: Confederate Service Records: Roll 336) Daniel T. was the son of Jacob Eusabius the son of Daniel and Sarah, grandson of Johannes Frantz Sammet. He was also a nephew of both Peter and Joseph Summit who were captured at Vicksburg also. (See Tennessee Gen Web, Confederate Infantry Units)

Caleb was captured at the Battle of Monocacy Junction in Maryland, July 9, 1864. He was released February 9, 1865. He was mustered out at Washington, D.C. on June 25, 1865.

Daniel Summitt, served as private in Company E, 59th Tennessee Mounted Infantry, Confederate Army.

Daniel F. (or T.) Summitt, Company A, 2 (Ashby's) Tennessee Calvary, Confederate Army. According to the notes of Paul C.

Summitt, Daniel F. Summitt enlisted for service in Lincoln County on August 3, 1861 at the age of 35. He deserted in the summer of 1863 and returned to duty September 30, 1863. He forfeited one month's pay by order of a courts martial. Daniel was one of the casualties of Ewell's Corps in the battle of Paynes' farm and operations on Mine Run in Virginia November 17-18, 1863. He was sent to Camp Winder General Hospital in Richmond, Virginia on November 29, 1863 and died there of vulius Sclopet on January 13, 1864. Probably buried in an unmarked grave.

Daniel F. Summitt: Company A, 2nd (Ashby's) Tennessee Calvary. This Daniel enlisted June 1, 1863 at Knoxville, Tenn. Age 20 from Monroe Co., Tenn. He was in Captain John H. Kuhn's Company. After the war he was a policeman and was killed in his home town (note: Mrs. Williford) He was possibly the son of Eurebius and Sarah Summett of Blount Co., Tenn.

Daniel F. Summitt (also as David F. Summitt), enlisted as a private in Company D, 1st North Carolina Infantry Regiment, Confederate Army on August 3, 1861 at the age of 35. He claimed residence in Lincoln County, North Carolina. In July 1861, the 1st NC was mustered in and sent to Virginia where it participated in the campaigns from the Seven Day's Battles to Cold Harbor, was with Early in the Shenandoah Valley, and shared in the Appomattox operations. The unit reported 142 casualties at Mechanicsville, 75 at Malvern Hill, 160 at South Mountain and Sharpsburg, 15 at Fredericksburg, 34 at Chancellorsville and forty percent of the 377 left at Gettysburg.

(Confederate Service Record, M-270, Roll 98). Daniel deserted in the summer of 1863 and returned from desertion Sept. 30, 1863. He forfeited one month pay by order of court martial. Daniel was wounded in the forearm while serving with Ewell's Corps in the battle of Payne's Farm and operations on Mine Run, Virginia during November 27 and 28th, 1863. He was received at receiving and wayside hospital November 28, 1863 and was sent to Camp Winder General Hospital, Richmond, Virginia on November 29, 1863. Daniel died at Camp Winder of Vulius Scopet on January 13, 1864.

Speaking of that, we're still waiting for Jackie to deliver the twins. Yes, I know they would be early but she's been in the hospital for over a month now as they have worked to stop her labor. She is on complete bed rest and it is doubtful that she will be released until the babies are born. When are they due, you ask? June 4. I don't think we're going to make it.

I've slowly working on the Cardwell Cemetery Project and now plan on adding the St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery as soon as I have the time. I recently finished another chapter for another computer book and it is in book stores now. I'm also playing Gulf to January 1863. Served in Occupation of Baton Rouge, Louisiana. He deserted at Indian Village, Louisiana on February 13, 1863.

Isaac L. Summit, Company K, 46 North Carolina Infantry, Confederate Army. The 46th Regiment was active in various conflicts of Army of Northern Virginia from Seven Day's Battles to Fredericksburg. It was sent to Pocotaligo, SC until June 1863 and returned to Virginia. It fought at Briscoe, The Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor and Petersburg. It had 5 killed during the Maryland Campaign, 11 killed at Fredericksburg and had 54 percent disabled of the 540 engaged at the Wilderness. (Confederate Service Record: Micro M-270, Roll 457).

According to most of the stories I've been told, Isaac L. Summit joined Company K, 46th North Carolina Infantry on April 16, 1862, the same day that Pinkney Summit joined the same outfit. This date differs from that given in the North Carolina Troops 1861-1865, A Roster published in 1993. This document gives his enlistment date as March 13, 1862. Isaac L. was 30 years old when he enlisted and had been born in Catawba County (which would have been Lincoln County at the time of his birth). His occupation was listed as tanner, the same occupation as Pinkney. He was 5' 6 1/2" tall. He was promoted to full corporal on November 1, 1862. He was wounded in the Battle of Reams Station, Virginia on August 25, 1864 and died at Camp Winder hospital in Richmond of wounds (vulius Sclopet) on September 4, 1864. Isaac L. was the son of John and Rebecca Robison Summit. He married Perlve Abernathy on February 1, 1857 in Catawba County. They had two daughters, Margaret Ellen and Naoma Elizabeth. The following letter was first printed in the Wilmington Journal in 1864 and later reprinted in the Southern Historical Society Papers, Vol.9 (1881) pages 245 and 246.

*Head-Quarters Army of Northern Virginia
August 29th, 1864*

His Excellency Z. B. Vance, Governor of North Carolina

I have been frequently called upon to mention the services of North Carolina soldiers in this army, but their gallantry and conduct were never more deserving the admiration than in the engagement at Reams' Station on the 25th instant.

The brigades of General Cook, McRae and

Lane the last under the temporary command of General Conner, advanced through a thick abattis of felled trees under a heavy fire of musketry and artillery, and carried the enemy's works with a steady courage, that elicited the warm commendation of their corps and division commanders and the admiration of the army.

I am with great respect your obedient servant.

R. E. Lee, General

(From Glen Summit's notes)

Isaac Summit raised the rebel flag for his unit, The Catawba Braves, and then charged the enemy for what would be the last time. He took his fatal wound not long after Union troops had ripped up miles of track along the Weldon Railroad, severing a key Confederate supply route at Reams Station. ("Grant Takes Command," by Bruce Catton)

"Isaac L. Summit was shot in the charge with the colors in his hands . . ." recalled Charles Parker, fellow soldier and friend who fought alongside him at the Battle of Rams station in Dinwiddie County, Virginia. August 25, 1864 was a day of battle much different from others Isaac had fought. It was the beginning of the end for the 32-year-old father of two from Catawba County, North Carolina.

Before the battle, the armies of Lee and Grant were immobilized in siege warfare along 25 miles of forts and trenches that began at Richmond and then swung down below Petersburg. Unable to seize Petersburg by surprise, Grant focused on severing a key supply line: the Weldon Railroad. (Paul C. Summitt's Notes; Freeport, Florida; 1998)

Following the battle, Isaac was probably first moved to a field hospital, located just a mile or so behind the lines. Here the wounded received immediate attention in order to hold the afflicted over till transfer. Isaac was then transported to Camp Winder General Hospital in Richmond, on the Confederate Capital's western edge.

Winder was one of the largest of Richmond's medical centers, able to accommodate as many as 4300 patients at a time. Ninety-eight pine buildings made up the compound over an area of 125 acres. Many wounded Confederate soldiers found themselves at Camp Winder. In fact, sixty percent of all wounded Confederates found themselves at Richmond military hospitals. ("Civil War Virginia: Battleground for a Nation," by James I. Robertson Jr.; University Press of Virginia; Charlottesville and London, 1991) Hospital workers dumped all of the facility's refuse into a trench, which completely encircled the Winder compound. Nine months out of the year a putrid odor permeated the air, making life miserable for both soldiers and staff alike. Isaac's experience at the military hospital was undoubtedly brutal. He arrived during the hottest part of the summer; one can only imagine the terrible smells of filth and death lingering in the air as he tried to recuperate from his wounds. Within two weeks he was dead.

Isaac Lanford Summit (son of John, grandson of Jacob, and great-grandson of Johannes Frantz Sammet) succumbed to his battle wound (Vulius Sclopet) on September 9, 1864 at Camp Winder General Hospital. ("North Carolina Troops, 1861-1865: A Roster," compiled by Louis Manarin and Weymouth Jordan; 1990.)

The location of his grave is unknown, but it is assumed he is buried in a mass unmarked grave somewhere in the vicinity of Richmond. Local grave diggers in Richmond buried hundreds at a time in shallow graves which were frequently exposed when it rained. Isaac enlisted at the formation of Company K, 46th North Carolina Infantry at Camp Mangum on April 16, 1862, the same day as Pinkney Summit. Note: Pinkney may be Isaac's older brother, known as Hubbard, or a close relative. According to Isaac's military records, he stood 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall; his occupation was tanner. During the two years he fought for the Confederacy, he served as corporal in Captain Adolphus T. Bost's Company, known as the Catawba Braves. He was mustered in as a private and later promoted to 4th Corporal on November 1, 1862; 3rd Corporal January 1, 1863; 2nd Corporal May 6, 1864 and 1st Corporal on July 15th. (Daniel Summitt's Notes; Lexington, North Carolina; 1998.) Isaac's name appears on a "Roll of Honor" for the 46th Regiment. Isaac was born about 1832 in Lincoln County to John and Rebecca Robinson. His brothers, according to census records, included an older brother as well as a younger brother named P. Heglar. His sister's included: Mary Catherine, Sarah Jane, Paulina Hagler, Martha and Barbary Margaret. John's second wife was Mary Camila Lee; they had one adopted daughter named Mary Propst. About five years before he enlisted, Isaac married Perlve (Perlina) Abernethy, the daughter of Phillip Abernethy and Polly (Orent) Arndt, on Feb. 1, 1857 in Catawba County. Soon after their marriage the farming couple had two daughters, Naomi and Margaret.

Creek to July 20, 1864, the Siege of Atlanta July 22-August 19, 1864, and moved to Nashville where he was mustered out December 31, 1864

John was the son of Daniel and Sarah and the grandson of Johannes Frantz Sammet.

John's brothers, Joseph Ewing and Peter, (Confederates) were captured at Vicksburg John Summit, Company D, 49th Louisiana Infantry, Confederate Army. Alias John Butler served as a Private from 1863 till September 1865. He was enumerated in the Special Schedule of Surviving Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines, and Widows for Richland County, Louisiana, Ward 4, enumerated June 1890. He was living in house number 277, family number 290. He was listed as wounded in the right thigh but didn't remember what day or month that he enlisted.

Joseph Ewing Summit, Company D, 62 Tennessee Mounted Infantry, Rowan's Regiment, 80 Tennessee Infantry. Confederate Army. Joseph Ewing Summit, son of Daniel and Sarah Moser Summit and grandson of Johannes Frantz Sammet, served in the confederate forces in Tennessee. He enlisted for three years on March 1, 1863 at Monroe Co., Tenn. (Sweetwater). He was twenty nine years old at that time. He was born May 19, 1824. The only other known items concerning his war service is that he was captured at the fall of Vicksburg, Mississippi, following General Grant's siege of that city on July 4, 1863. He signed an amnesty paper promising to return home but ended up serving in Vaughn's Brigade in Eastern Tennessee and Western Virginia thereafter. A copy of his federal parole at Vicksburg, Mississippi was executed July 8, 1863. (Confederate Service Record, Roll 344) Joseph survived the war and went on to live his life out in Monroe County, Tennessee. (See Tennessee Gen Web for more information.)

Otis Summit (Summet, Summat); Company C, 8th New Hampshire Infantry Regiment, 2nd New Hampshire Cavalry, December 1863. Claimed his residence in New York, NY. On September 30 he was mustered in as a substitute as a Private at the age of 22 years. Born in Wurttemberg, Germany, Otis was promoted to full corporal on June 25, 1864. Probably began service about the time the 8th designation was changed to 2nd Cavalry in December 1863. Defenses of New Orleans to September 1864. Duty at Franklin, LA. till 1864. Red River Campaign March 10-May 22. Natchitoches March 31, 1864. Battle of Pleasant Hill, Monett's Bluff, Mansura and Yellow Bayou. He was in transferred from Company C to Company B on January 1, 1865 and was in Natchez till October 1865. Otis was mustered out at Vicksburg, Mississippi on October 28, 1865

Peter Summit, served as a private with Company G, 59 Tennessee Mounted Infantry, Cooke's Regiment, 1 Eakins Battalion Confederate Army. Peter Summit, younger brother of Joseph and son of Daniel and Sarah Moser Summit, served in the Confederate forces in Tennessee after enlisting at Madisonville, Tenn. for a three year term on March 15, 1862 at the age of 28. Originally in Captain Josiah Wright's Company, 1st Battalion Tenn. Infantry, Peter deserted at Loudon County, Tenn. On December 1, 1863. Later he was paroled at Vicksburg, Miss. according to terms of surrender July 4, 1863. Parole executed by Peter Summit at Vicksburg, Miss on July 10, 1863. Legible signature. Served in Vaughn's Brigade in Eastern Tennessee and Western Virginia thereafter. (Confederate Service Record, Roll 336) (See Tennessee Gen Web)

Peter was the son of Daniel and Sarah and grandson of Johannes Frantz Sammet. His brother was Joseph Ewing (also captured at Vicksburg) Peter was also in Vicksburg when captured by General Grant. He also signed an amnesty paper promising to return home. Peter survived the war and went on to live his life out in Monroe County, Tennessee.

Pinkney Summit, Company K, 46 North Carolina Infantry, Confederate Army. The 46th Regiment was active in various conflicts of Army of Northern Virginia from Seven Day's Battles to Fredericksburg. This unit was sent to Pocatigo, SC until June 1863 and returned to Virginia. Fought at Briscoe, The Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor and Petersburg. The unit had 5 killed during the Maryland Campaign, 11 killed at Fredericksburg and had 54 percent disabled of the 540 engaged at the Wilderness. (Confederate Service Record: Micro M-270, Roll 457)

The Seven Day's Battles June 25-July 1, 1862 included Mechanicsville, Gaine's Mill, Savage's Station, Frayer's Farm and Malvern hill. McClellan was withdrawing and Lee was attacking constantly. (Source: Confederate Service Records, Micro M-270, Roll 457)

Pinkney is thought to be Hubbard, a son of John and Rebecca Summit of

Catawba County, North Carolina and was the grandson of Johannes Frantz Sammet. His brothers were Heglar and Isaac. According to most of the stories I've been told, Pinkney enlisted at Camp Magnum on April 16, 1862. Pinkney was 33 at the time of enlistment in Company H, 46th North Carolina Infantry (State Troopers). This differs from the March 13, 1862 enlistment date entered in the North Carolina Troops 1861-1865, A Roster published in 1993. Born in Catawba County, listed as a tanner. Stood 5'9". His rank was that of private. From the diary of Polycarp Cyprian Henkel 1820-1889:

May 1862

Found this letter from Marilyn at the bottom of a stack of documents. Sorry Marilyn that I misplaced it. But, as you asked, I have included it in a future edition of SFQ (finally <VBG>).

Dear Paul:

On December 28, 2002, I took the enclosed photo in Whitley City, Kentucky. The photo is of the oldest living member of my ancestral tree/branch of whom I have any knowledge. The woman is Eda Francis Bowen Summitt (widow of William Summitt), and the man is one of her sons, William Gene Summitt.

William Gene Summitt is a grandson of Jessie Bryan Summitt, my great grandfather. That, of course, makes him my father's first cousin. William Gene Summitt is the father of Debbie Kay Summitt Acoba whom you may have corresponded with last year when she was doing some research.

Hope you can include this in a future edition of SFQ.

Yours very truly,

Marilyn Kay Summitt
